This is our first time attending the fair, and so far we are satisfied with the performance. We hope to establish new relationships and connections here.

It's a developing market - that's exactly why we're here. We saw the potential, and that's what brought us here. We see significant potential across West Africa. We were already doing business in Nigeria. Now we are in Côte d'Ivoire. We are very hopeful about this market. There are some major competitors, but we also have the strength to compete.
